SUN. APRIL 12

Player to watch for goal, point and/or shots on goal: Troy Terry, F, ANA (vs. VAN; 8 p.m. ET; KTTV, Victory+, SNP)

The Anaheim Ducks forward has 11 points (five goals, six assists) and a team-leading 47 shots on goal (tied for 11th in NHL) over his past 12 games. After having a season-high nine shots on goal against the Nashville Predators on Thursday, Terry had another six shots on goal against the San Jose Sharks on Thursday; those 15 shots on goal are his second-most in any two-game span in his career. Terry has had points in five of his past six games against the Vancouver Canucks totaling seven points (three goals, four assists) in those games. Per NHL EDGE stats, Terry has scored 12 of his 18 goals this season from high-danger zones and ranks among the forward leaders in midrange shots on goal (72; 93rd percentile). Since Dec. 30, 2025, the Canucks are last in the NHL in points percentage (.232), penalty kill percentage (67.7) and team save percentage (.859) and allowing the most goals per game (4.20) over that span. -- Troy Perlowitz

Player to watch for point, assist and/or goal: Connor Brown, F, NJD (vs. OTT; 7 p.m. ET; MSGSN2, TSN5, RDS1)

The New Jersey Devils forward has 42 points (17 goals, 25 assists) in 73 games this season and 20 points (seven goals, 13 assists) and five power-play points in his past 21 games. Brown has found chemistry on the first line and first power play with Jack Hughes (25 points in 23 games since 2026 Winter Olympics; first in NHL) and Jesper Bratt (30 points in past 23 games; tied for 10th). Brown has had at least one point in eight of his past 11 games and is one point away from matching his career-high 43 points with the Ottawa Senators in 2019-20. Per NHL EDGE stats, Brown ranks highly among forwards in max skating speed (23.23 mph; 90th percentile), high-danger goals (12; 82nd percentile) and total skating distance (212.07 miles; 87th percentile). -- Chris Meaney
